ALLEN PARK ATHLETICS

ON THE SIDELINE: HALLOWEEN, SISTERS, CANDY AND PLASTIC MASKS

By Don Richter
drichter101@comcast.net
Happy Halloween.

Well, I guess I should say, happy post-Halloween.

I hope everyone had a fun, spooky-filled holiday.

Halloween has always been one of my favorite holidays. I'm sure I'm not alone in that sentiment.

I have so many memories of Halloween nights from my youth. From the plastic, "hard-to-breathe-in" costume masks I wore growing up in the 1970s, to the rubbery, piano wire-type string holding the mask on my face.

That string always got caught in my hair and would rip out quite a few follicles when I took off the mask. Plus, the mask string was always so tight on the back of my head it would invariably leave burn-like groove marks on the top of my ears for days afterward.

All that mask unease was worth it though once I returned home with a giant bag full of candy. I'll always remember getting home after a long night of trick-or-treating and emptying the contents of my Halloween bag onto the kitchen table and marveling at all the delicious candy in front of my young, excitable eyes. After Mom went through it looking for anything suspicious, I was finally free to gorge myself on the sweets laid out before me.

Sadly, of course, my sisters would eventually wander into the kitchen and all of a sudden become my "best friends." By the time I started my "Halloween Years," my sisters were in their early teens and too cool to go trick-or-treating. Normally, I was a nuisance being the youngest in the family and the only boy, but on Halloween night I was the most popular person in the house. Heck, even Dad would saunter in from the living room or up from his basement workbench and grab a handful of candy.

"Thanks, Biggie (that was his nickname for me)," he'd say as he walked out of the kitchen unwrapping a Three Musketeers candy bar (his favorite).

Despite having my candy pile diminishing minute-by-minute as members of my family rifled through my hard earned stash like a pack of hungry raccoons, I never really minded. It was kind of nice actually. I felt somewhat like a hero bringing home the spoils of his nighttime conquest and sharing with the family.

Plus, I remember those times with a smile on my face. I don't think you can be sad eating candy. I look back and can still hear the laughter and squealing of my sisters as the rummaged through my candy pile searching for and finally finding their favorite candy bar. I can hear Dad coming into the kitchen wide-eyed and jokingly saying, "Ooohhh, candy. That's my boy." Mom would sit at the other end of the kitchen table and, while munching on some candy (of course, right?), ask me about the night. Those are great memories.

Either Mom or Dad would take me around on Halloween Night when I was young, but as I got older, I would go with neighborhood friends. I still remember the moment when my "Halloween Years" officially came to an end.

I was in the sixth-grade and going around trick-or-treating with my buddies. I still remember my costume. I was a cowboy — complete with fake stubble and mustache, holster and toy pistol, cowboy boots and jeans, loud cowboy-type button-up shirt, toy rifle and cowboy hat. I remember near the end of the night going up to a house in the neighborhood, yelling trick-or-treat and subsequently receiving candy and a frown from the female home owner.

"Aren't you a little old for trick-or-treating," she asked. "How old are you boys?"

As we all walked away from the house, I remember thinking to myself for the first time, "Yeah, I guess I am too old for this now."

It was a sad moment I can still feel to this day.

That was the last year I went trick-or-treating.

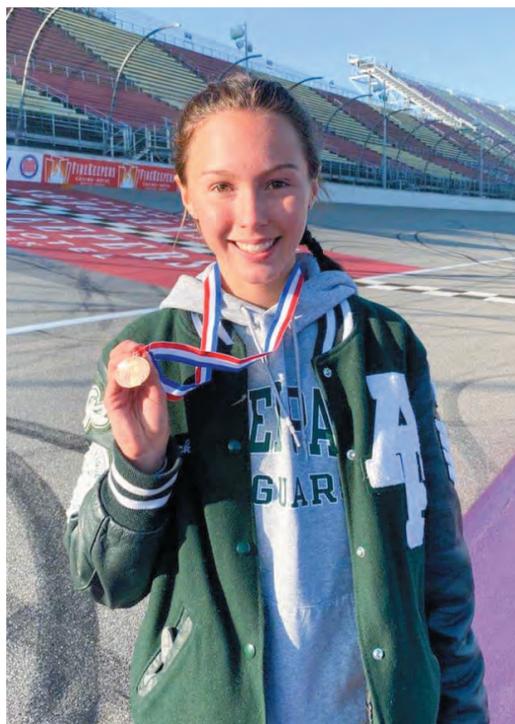

I miss it. There should be a place where adults can dress up again in costumes and go door to door trick-or-treating.

Crisp nighttime air.

Walking loudly through leaves as you go from house to house.

Pounding on the door and yelling trick-or-treat.

Take me back. Plastic mask and all...

I-275 project update: Median crossovers being built, I-94 ramps reopened, other ramps closing

From: City of Allen Park Government
COUNTY: Wayne
ROADWAYS: I-275
I-94
5 Mile Road
Eureka Road
Will Carleton Road

I-275 UPDATE:
Crews are working in the I-275 median between Eureka Road and 5 Mile Road to build up the current northbound left shoulder and build crossovers for ramp access during next year's rebuilding of southbound I-275. In 2022, a traffic shift will put both directions of I-275 traffic on the current northbound side using the newly rebuilt shoulder; the crossovers will allow drivers to cross over the work area to access the entrance and exit ramps. The 5 Mile Road bridge over I-275 is expected to reopen sometime in early December. The roadwork on I-275 from Will Carleton Road to 6 Mile Road should wrap up in early December for this first year of the project. Crews expect to return in late winter. Airport access is available at the I-94/Merriman Road and I-275/Eureka Road interchanges.

I-275 OPEN RAMPS:
- 6 Mile Road
- I-96/M-14 interchange
- Ann Arbor Road
- M-153 (Ford Road)

- US-12 (Michigan Avenue)
- Ecorse Road
- I-94 interchange
- Sibley Road
- Eureka Road (except this weekend's ramp closures noted below)
CLOSED RAMPS:
- Westbound Eureka Road ramp to southbound I-275 - 9 a.m.-3p.m. daily through November.
- Eastbound Eureka Road ramp to northbound I-275 - 9 a.m.-3p.m. daily through November
- Northbound I-275 ramp to S. Huron Road - through November
- S. Huron Road ramp to northbound I-275 - through November
- Northbound

I-275 ramp to Will Carleton Road - 6 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 6, to 7 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 7.
- Will Carleton Road ramp to northbound I-275 - 6 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 6, to 7 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 7.
I-275 PROJECT DETAILS:
The Michigan Department of Transportation will be repairing and rebuilding 24 miles of I-275 between Will Carleton Road and 6 Mile Road in Wayne County in six phases over four years. The project includes 10 miles of concrete pavement repairs, 14 miles of rebuilding concrete pavement, asphalt resurfacing of four interchanges, rebuilding concrete pavement of parts or all of six interchanges, improving 65 bridges and a retaining wall, drainage improvements, sign replacements, traffic signal modernizations, intelligent transportation system (ITS) improvements, sidewalk improvements that are compliant with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), and tree replacements. Additionally, a segment of the Metro Trail will be rebuilt to replace an adjacent retaining wall.

Funding for this project is made possible by Gov. Gretchen Whitmer's Rebuilding Michigan program to rebuild the state highways and bridges that are critical to the state's economy and carry the most traffic. The investment strategy is aimed at fixes that result in longer useful lives and improves the condition of the state's infrastructure.

During this major multi-year project, work will be occurring in multiple areas at different times. For more project details and updates, go to www.Revive275.org.
SAFETY BENEFITS:
This project will result in a smoother driving surface, extending the lifespan of the roadway and increasing safety. Drainage will also be improved by this work.

Preparing for Winter: How to Prevent Ice Dams

From: Allpoint Construction

When the snow starts to fall in Michigan, it looks pristine and sparkling, adding a certain charm to your home and a pillowy outline to your roof. When snow begins to build up, though, and the weather fluctuates from warm to cold, ice dams can form. An ice dam can develop when snow melts and then continues to refreeze and melt, forming a layer of ice. Ice dams can be quite heavy, sometimes causing your roof to buckle, or worse yet, collapse. Leaks are another problem caused by ice dams, so it's critical that you do all you can to prevent them. Here are three tips from Allpoint Construction, a local, family-owned company that has more than 20 years of experience preventing and removing ice dams: 1) If you can safely access your roof, remove excess snow before it accumulates. This will eliminate the biggest cause of ice dams – a buildup of water and ice. If you aren't physically able to do so or don't have the proper ladder or equipment, a company like Allpoint can do the job safely and quickly. 2) Make sure your gutters and downspouts are clear of debris.

Melting snow needs a clear path to travel away from your roof; if blockage exists, snow and ice can become trapped and form ice dams. 3) Have your home properly insulated with insulation that is rated a minimum of R-30. R-30 insulation is typically 10.25" wide, reducing heat conduction by up to 97%. If you need professional help, a reputable construction contractor can insulate your home to help with ventilation and improve heat flow. By following these tips, you can help prevent ice dams before they become a major problem, resulting in thousands of dollars of roof repairs. If you're unsure about the shape of your roof, it's a good idea to have it inspected annually – before the winter weather hits. That way you'll be prepared for snow and ice, heading ice dams off at the chase. Allpoint Construction is in the business of making homes safe, which is why you should call them today to schedule a roof inspection. Their experts will make sure your roof is clear of debris and sturdy enough to handle what lies ahead this winter. They'll do an exterior and interior inspection, including your gutters and downspouts. If your roof needs repair or replacement, they'll give you an affordable estimate. If you suspect you have an ice dam during the dead of winter, don't try to remove it yourself – it can be dangerous. Let the ice dam removal specialists at Allpoint handle it – they'll do it safely and quickly, so you won't have to worry. If left unchecked, ice dams can severely impact your home, causing significant damage. Preventive home maintenance is the smartest way to stop ice dams from forming, which is why you should follow the easy tips above. Keep your property and family safe this winter from excess ice by calling Allpoint Construction at 734-407-7110.
