ALLEN PARK ATHLETICS

ON THE SIDELINE: I’M THANKFUL FOR MICROWAVES, BOOKS, MOVIES AND MOBB DEEP

By Don Richter
drichter101@comcast.net

I’m thankful for a lot of things.
How about you?
Yes, I know this “thankful” column is early, but I’ll be out of town next week, so my Thanksgiving musings will have to run in this edition of the paper.
I know, no one cares, but I had to clarify for the one or two people who read this column.
As I said earlier, I’m thankful for a lot of things.
I’m thankful for the Detroit Lions. Err, I mean, I’m thankful for this year’s version of the Detroit Lions. For the first time in my lifetime, the Lions are actually receiving some legitimate Super Bowl buzz. And the buzz is surprisingly warranted. Since starting last season 1-6, Detroit is 15-4 in its last 19 games, including going 8-2 to close out the 2022 year. The Lions’ 15-4 streak is the single greatest span of games I’ve ever seen Detroit play in my life. I’ve been watching and cheering on the Lions for five decades now. I’m thankful for this recent winning culture with Detroit, it’s long overdue.

I’m thankful for football, in general. Is there a better sport? There’s no other sport where I can sit in my recliner for 12 hours straight and watch game after game and never tire. The only time I remove my rear end from my La-Z-Boy is to pay the pizza delivery person, go to the bathroom and refill my pop glass. Otherwise, my sorry butt is smack dab in front of my flat screen flipping between games hour after hour until I pass out from “football watching exhaustion.” It’s a real thing, I looked it up.
I’m thankful for my microwave.
I’m thankful for my new Buick SUV.
I’m thankful for my new driveway, walkway and porch.

I’m thankful my knee healed. I fell off my roof a few years ago (don’t ask) and busted up my knee, tore my calf muscle, twisted my ankle and somehow broke a rib. Thankfully, everything has healed. And thankfully I will not be climbing up a ladder and inspecting my roof each fall to sweep off leaves and other debris. I know, I’m an idiot. Believe me, I’ve been informed of that fact multiple times since falling off my roof by family, friends, significant others, work colleagues and even the nurses and doctors who helped care for me during my recuperation.
I’m thankful for my family.
I’m thankful for my friends.
I’m thankful for my job and the awesome people I work with every day.
I’m thankful for a paycheck.
I’m thankful for my health.
I’m thankful for books and magazines.
Yes, I’m old school. If you’ve never read a Reader’s Digest, you need to take the time and do so. If you’ve never read a book about the connection between the state of Michigan, World War II and the Great Lakes, you owe it to yourself to sit down and do it — you won’t be disappointed. Besides the New York City and Los Angeles areas, the most heavily defended city in America during WWII was Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan. Why you ask? You’ll be amazed and quite proud to be a Michigander once you find out the answer(s). And it wasn’t just because of the Soo Locks — though they did play a significant role.

I’m thankful for music. I can’t stop listening to George Birge’s song “Mind on You.” I’ve also recently rediscovered the 1990s rap lyrical legends better known as Mobb Deep. Remember those guys, old timers? I recommend listening to “Give Up the Goods,” “Survival of the Fittest” and “Shook Ones.” You’re welcome. Yeah, that’s how I roll.

I’m thankful for movies like “Jaws,” (“You’re gonna need a bigger boat.”), “Friday the 13th,” “Star Wars,” “Caddyshack,” (“You scratched my anchor!”), “Back to the Future,” “Planes, Trains and Automobiles” and “Braveheart” (“Freedom!”).
I’m thankful for my TV remote control — when I can find it.
I’m thankful for bologna and potato chip sandwiches. Yes, it’s a thing. Yes, it’s delicious. And, yes, I still have the tastebuds of an 8-year-old.

I’m thankful for lazy, do nothing and like it, weekends. After working seven days a week for most of the year (I had to pay for that new driveway somehow), I’m thankful for peace and quiet and being bored — bring it on.
I’m thankful I get to write a column in my local newspaper. Unlike me, it’s pretty cool.
I’m thankful for another year of spending Thanksgiving with my almost 90-year-old Mom.
I’m thankful for a lot of things.
How about you?
There has to be something...
