Detroit Manufacturing Systems Strikes Partnership with InductEV to Accelerate Adoption of High-Power Wireless Charging for Commercial Vehicles

DMS to Help InductEV Meet the Growing Demand for Wireless Charging from Fleet Owners & Operators and Port and Freight Terminals

Municipal bus approaching a wireless inductive charging pad.

Wireless commercial vehicle charging took a big step forward today with an agreement between Detroit Manufacturing Systems and InductEV. In the landmark agreement, DMS, a large-scale, U.S.-based assembly provider, will bring its operations, manufacturing, quality by design, and supply chain expertise to InductEV allowing the latter to more quickly scale to meet customer demand.

InductEV is re-inventing how electric commercial fleet vehicles charge their batteries by charging on route, using clean renewable electricity. With its wireless induction solution now deployed worldwide and with 18 patents granted and 23 in process, the King of Prussia, PA-based company is the global leader in high-power, high-speed wireless EV charging and AI-software powered energy management.

Under the terms of this agreement, DMS will:

- Manufacture InductEV’s hardware, including in-ground and under-vehicle inductive pads.

- Manage InductEV’s supply chain and procurement.
- Utilize engineering expertise to facilitate high quality, design for manufacturing and assembly.
- Co-develop design optimizations to prepare for a 100-fold increase in production volume.

“We couldn’t be more pleased to have a manufacturing partner, known for its high standards and operating rigor, combine forces with our proprietary engineering,” said Barry Libert, Chairman and CEO, InductEV. “Our complementary areas of expertise will enable us to meet the growing demand from commercial fleet owners and operators, as well as Intermodal facilities and Ports, for our advanced, AI-managed wireless charging solution.”

Among its product offerings, Detroit Manufacturing Systems currently handles manufacturing for the Ford EV F-150 Lightning signaling its expertise in advanced electric vehicle components and systems production. InductEV’s patented technology is currently being used in locations throughout North America and Europe, including in Washington State, Indianapolis, Martha’s Vineyard, and in Gothenburg, Sweden, Volvo’s hometown. (Volvo Ventures is an InductEV investor.) The company is poised to announce the largest commitment by a U.S. port facility to its wireless charging technology.

“We recognize and applaud InductEV’s efforts to wirelessly electrify commercial fleets, the biggest contributor in transportation to greenhouse gas emissions worldwide,” added Bruce Smith, Chairman and CEO, Detroit Manufacturing Systems. “We look forward to bringing our manufacturing, quality and supply chain expertise to this partnership and creating a successful venture that will help reduce this sector’s carbon footprint at a considerable cost savings for all involved.”

InductEV’s proprietary, on-route wireless charging solution shifts EV charging to daytime use of renewables. It reduces the need for large EV batteries, lowering vehicle costs, and eliminates the need for recycling by extending battery life by a factor of 4-8X. Wireless charging also enables the broad deployment of autonomous vehicles.

ABOUT InductEV

InductEV (formerly Momentum Dynamics) is revolutionizing how electric commercial fleet vehicles charge their batteries. With its proprietary on-route wireless solution now deployed throughout North America and Europe and with 18 U.S. patents and 23 pending, the King of Prussia, PA-based company is the global leader in high-power, high-speed wireless EV charging and AI-software powered energy management. The company just opened one of world’s first

R&D centers for wireless vehicle charging. (<https://www.inductev.com/>)

About Detroit Manufacturing Systems (DMS)

Detroit Manufacturing Systems (DMS) is a contract manufacturing and assembly company that is committed to and is constantly striving for manufacturing excellence and perfect quality. This is achieved through meticulous mistake proofing and a culture of continuous improvement. Ever notice a glass display in Allen Park City Hall with flags made out of wood? Len Perotta creates these flags. He founded 5 Lakes Wood Co. with the goal of expressing himself through his art. Hand carved flags are his specialty. Each flag is created by putting 13 individual boards together and carefully carving the unique waves, stars and other details. It is then taken apart, sanded, stained, and re-assembled. Each is one-of-a-kind. Len also created unique art pieces, cutting boards, cheese cutters, and other home décor items. Born and raised in Allen Park, and the grandson of a dedicated city councilman, Len himself is committed to the future of the city. You can reach Len at 5lakeswoodco@gmail.com.

City of Allen Park Awarded Grant from America In Bloom and CN Rail

ing with new shrubs, perennials, trees, concrete walkways, and a patio area with bench seating that can be used for small community gatherings. The project will also include a new flagpole (if needed), upgraded lighting for the flagpole, and a GFI outlet near the evergreen trees so it is easier and safer to add Christmas lights. This will allow for the continued transformation of the museum that started in October 2022 - all of which has been funded through grants from the Wayne County CDBG program. This project will start after July 1st and be finished by November 15th.

The City was awarded this same $25,000 grant by America In Bloom and CN Rail in 2022 for the Brand Park Vietnam Veterans & Beyond Memorial and the Champaign Park Blue Star Memorial projects that were substantially completed in the Fall.
